In our second 42nd Parallel Newsletter, we will be providing a brief recap of our January and February events, highlighting Asian Americans in the News, promoting important Asian businesses, and giving you insight on what you can look forward to in the coming months!

We will be discussing the exciting release of the movie, Minari, directed by Lee Isaac Chung! You'll also get some insight into how we kept the virtual party alive with our amazing DJs at Sundown Sounds, along with our inspirational guests at Shinjiro Sessions, and the encouraging stories of Asian Americans who are uplifting each other in these trying times!

Be sure to keep an eye out for our merch on the 42 store as well! Additionally, we will be highlighting events to look forward to, such as our upcoming Sundown Sounds and Shinjiro Sessions. See you there!

MARTELL COGNAC ACTIVATION EVENT

In February, 42nd Parallel executed an event at China Place Liquor City (@chinaplaceliquorcity) to celebrate the Lunar New Year. Those who purchased any Martell bottle received a FREE premium branded gift set! They were also able to personalize their gift by engraving their Martell bottle, pairing it with a customized new year greeting written by a professional Chinese calligrapher! Guests were also able to sample Martell Blue Swift and Cordon Bleu on-site. We had a great turnout!

SUNDOWN SOUNDS: SHOWCASING ASIAN ARTISTS

Enjoying music in a club setting might seem like a distant memory, but we've managed to keep the party alive with Sundown Sounds on Twitch! We've curated a list of the most talented Asian American DJs spinning across the globe to get down with us while we all quarantine at home. Reminisce with us on our February lineup that showcased DJ Zel, Inkfast, and D::DOUBLE!

ASIAN AMERICANS IN THE NEWS

The Release of the Movie "MINARI"

Minari follows the story of a Korean American family who moves to an Arkansas farm in pursuit of the "American Dream." The family home dynamic shifts when their "sly, foul-mouthed, but incredibly loving grandmother" arrives. Amidst the instability and challenges of this new life, Minari shows the undeniable resilience of family and what really makes a home. The film beautifully captures the struggles and challenges of the Asian American immigrant story. The virtual screenings of this movie began on February 12, 2021, and can be found here.

Standing in Solidarity with our Asian Brothers and Sisters

math

Recently, there has been an increase in violence against Asian Americans. During these difficult times, it is important that all communities join together to combat racism.

In the Chinatown neighborhood, in Oakland, California over 300 people have volunteered to act as "community strollers" to help seniors pick up groceries and walk them home. This is one of the ways you can help elders in your community too!

古金融就源、

A GoFundMe started by Eda Yu to support the initiative against the violence towards Asian Americans has reached over $150K! The funds will be split equally to further support various Asian-American causes. We urge you to continue donating to this fund because every dollar counts. Please find the GoFundMe Link here. NADYA OKAMOTO, PERIOD.

Nadya founded a nonprofit that seeks to end period poverty and the stigma around menstruation. Since its founding, PERIOD has served more than 1 million people and is currently focusing on helping marginalized communities hit hardest by the coronavirus pandemic (COVID-19).

Slant'd Celebrating #badasians, one story at a time

KATARINA AND KRYSTIE YEN Slant'd

Katarina Jeng and Krystie Yen are founders of a collective that celebrates Asian American identity through all forms of storytelling. Most widely known for its print magazine, Slant'd includes a mixture of personal essays, poems, graphics, and photography that tell stories about the complex and diverse themes surrounding the Asian American experience.

The goal of the magazine is to "dismantle stereotypes, promote diversity, and finally, take ownership over the Asian-American story" - Katarina Jeng
